2014 TEN DEGREES ANDERSON VALLEY PINOT NOIR

98

POINTS

“Looks like I saved the best for last with this year’s stable of Pinot Noirs from Goldeneye. While it’s fun to showcase fruit sources in vineyard designated wines, it’s even more fun from a consumer point of view to witness the artistry of a great winemaker in creating a work from the best lots of the fruit sources available to them. This vintage of Ten Degrees shows Michael Accurso’s skill in a glorious mix of red and black fruit notes, with earth, spice and wildflower accents that shine through structured acidity with a weighty lightness (yes, that’s right) that keeps you engaged as the layers unfold.

A truly special wine.”
